

DOWIE'S THROAT GETS VERY SORE

Elijah Lays His Trouble to the Dust of New York as he Talks on Divine Healing in Madison Square Garden.

NEEDS STRONG DOSE OF THE LORD, HE ASSERTS.

Tells His Wife that the Restorer Is in Want of a Restorer—Exodus of His Followers Begins.

"Life Dowie's voice failed him to-day, and he was barely able to whisper his message on divine healing at Madison Square Garden. When the 'prophet' took the stand he said to 1,000 persons assembled, although only a few could hear him:

"I am more than a little concerned about my throat. Since coming to New York I have breathed in much dirt and it will take a liberal dose of the Lord to get it out."

Before going on the platform he said to Overseer Kroll: "My throat is very sore and so swollen that it is with difficulty I eat. I have been in a draught somewhere."

As he talked on divine healing and how he did it his voice was rasping, and occasionally was heard a hacking cough.

"It may be necessary to restore the Restorer," said Dowie jokingly to his wife, who leaves for Boston this evening. Then he started off on the subject of what a Christian should do when he is sick, and after a long discourse in which he was calm and docile and in which his language was quite devoid of the fervor which was his wont, he gave the answer, which was that he should call in an elder from the church.

To Appeal Pierson Case. In denying the Supreme Court which passed on the famed Pierson case, Dowie said, between coughs, that he would carry the matter to the United States Supreme Court. He decided unanimously that the New York Court of Appeals was in error in its decision, that a man had a right to pray and offer prayer for the afflicted and that he proposed to prove that contention.

In excusing his faith for its failure in the Pierson case, where the little girl died, Dowie said that the father had been a member of the church only three weeks when the child died; that he had not paid the elders anything for praying for the child, and intimated that in three weeks Pierson's faith had not grown to be strong enough to assist in the cure of his daughter.

Five hundred weary, footsore, hungry and lunk-headed members of Dowie's Restoration Host returned to Zion City to-day by special train. They had wearied of the effort of attempting to "regenerate" Manhattan. Many of them were ill, suffering from colds brought on by exposure to the cold winds of the city, and the many changes from the heated atmosphere of the garden to the piercing and unaccustomed air.

All were disgusted with the poor provision made for feeding them, and with the cramped and expensive accommodations procured for them. They had paid their own money for transportation here, paid in advance for meals that were not furnished them, paid for rooms that would only be let to them for a week at the price they estimated would cover their entire stay in the city.

For their expense and their trouble they had met only rebuffs. They and their leader were ridiculed, and they decided to go back to Zion City, where they could have peace and live economically and where the divine healer's branch of the Christian Catholic Church is in better working order than the New York offshoot.

Many Zionites Are Ill. Of the returning Zionites who crossed to Weehawken to-day by the West Shore ferry none was without some ailment. Colds, bronchitis, tonsillitis, and influenza seemed to be most common, though many gave unmistakable evidence of being affected with organic disorders.

The train that pulled out for Zion City might well have been called the hospital train, and doubtless many of those returning had done so at the suggestion of the managers of the local Dowie crusade, as their illness could not be kept under cover, and furnished a distracting commentary on the General Overseer's claim of healing power.

Elder Carson was in charge of the excommunicated and was followed by Dowie's legal representative, appeared on behalf of Elijah III, and gave the homegoing host the prophet's greeting and blessing.

"Peace be unto thee!" he cried, with a majestic waving of his hands as the train of six packed coaches pulled out. "Peace be unto thee multiplied!" was the answering chorus from the heads thrust from the car windows.

750 Return Tickets Presented. Local railway officials are authority for the statement that 750 of the round-trip tickets held by members of Dowie's Restoration Host have been presented for the return journey. Dowie asserted that only 125 of his followers have gone back.

When asked for an explanation of the decision of so many of his followers, Dowie to-day wrote out the following statement: "It is an infamous, dastardly, diabolical lie invented by the yellow press. For every one who has returned to Zion, and some who have not, I have arranged for a special train to leave Zion City Monday with fresh workers. Those who have come back are the people who intend to do so before we come to New York."

The depot as the train was passing ready for departure was a band of men and women and many Zionites who mingled with the homegoing Zionites and saw to it that they should converse with the unregenerate. It is thought that many of the Zionites of New York in six days, and some of the excommunicated were looking for the restoration at Weehawken. There was left almost alone to conduct the morning service that he needed only five hours' rest and was a stranger to bodily life. His appearance, he looked

SISTER SAVED BY LITTLE BROTHER

Seven-Year-Old Boy Takes Off His Jacket and Smothers the Flames Which Were Burning the Girl's Clothing.

BURNS HIMSELF IN PUTTING OUT FLAMES.

Reports Matter to Station-House, but Fails to Mention His Own Name or the Heroic Part He Played.

When six-year-old Nellie Loughran's dress caught fire in a lot in East One Hundred and Thirty-seventh street yesterday, all the boys and girls ran away but one. He was Nellie's brother, Sylvester, seven years old.

Whipping off his jacket he wrapped it around his sister, smothering the flames, and then he picked up her unconscious form and carried it toward home until his sturdy little legs failed him and he fell in a heap. Had it not been for his bravery Nellie would have been burned to death.

Sylvester has the modesty of a true hero. An Evening World reporter had to hunt all over the neighborhood to find him to-day. Finally he was cornered by some of his playmates and kept prisoner in a hallway.

"I never thought anything about it," he said. "The worst of it is that my coat was burned so I can't wear it." The father, Michael Loughran, a carpenter, is not in affluent circumstances, but he would willingly go in debt for a dozen coats lost under similar circumstances, and he is proud of his boy.

Bonfire Ignites Dress. Nellie and Sylvester were sent by their mother from the Loughran home, at No. 223 East One Hundred and Thirty-seventh street, to the shop of their father, at No. 223 Alexander avenue, with a message. On their way home they stopped in a lot where some children were playing around a bonfire. Nellie got too close to the flames, and her flimsy dress was instantly ablaze.

There were boys about the fire line and ten years old. They did not remain. At the first shriek of pain from little Nellie they cut out for remote points, and Sylvester and his sister were left alone.

The idea of deserting the little girl never occurred to Sylvester for a minute. He showed the resourcefulness and determination that might have been expected from a man.

The idea of taking off his coat and smothering the fire appeared to come to him instinctively, because he cannot remember of having ever heard of anything similar in his brief career of understanding.

Girl Swoons from Pain. By the time he got his jacket off little Nellie was a mass of smoke. He picked her up and over his shoulder she was protected from the great expanse of Sylvester's head and shoulders. He fainted with the pain and excitement.

Sylvester thought she might be dying and knew that he had best get her home. It was quite a distance, but he picked her up and over his shoulder she was protected from the great expanse of Sylvester's head and shoulders. He fainted with the pain and excitement.

Dr. Bumstead was called from his office, 145 West 145th street, to find that the girl was only slightly burned, but examination of the clothing shows that it was only a matter of seconds when she would have been completely enveloped in flames.

CLEVELAND GEM AGAIN IN COURT

Al Hayman Testifies $7,000 Was Realized and Searle & Co., Jewellers, Received Their Share—Rogers Got $4,500.

The great mystery of "the Cleveland gem" was to-day for solution by Supreme Court Justice Vernon M. Davis.

The diamond said to be worth $30,000 was on sale at the Actors' Fund Fair in Madison Square Garden in 1892. John R. Rogers, theatrical manager, asserts that he owned the gem and turned it over to the managers of the fair to sell, on an agreement by which he was to receive half the amount realized on it. He says he got only $4,500.

The Actors' Fund answers that the jewel came from Charles Searle & Company, jewelers.

Al Hayman testified he never saw the Cleveland gem except in the hands of Searle & Company.

Mr. Hummel drew out in cross-examination that the diamond was purchased of Searle & Company, not for the Actors' fund, but for the Actors' Fair, given by the theatrical managers of New York. It was to be sold at auction, Searle & Company to receive half.

John R. Rogers testified that he bought the diamond in 1884, and paid $20,000 for it. He said he never knew anything about the sale at auction.

MINISTER FALLS FROM BIKE. While the Rev. Elbert Stewart, of Newburg, N. Y., was riding a bicycle on Fifth avenue and Fifty-sixth street to-day, he collided with a wagon and received lacerations of the face. He was taken to Flower Hospital.

Former Magistrate Brann has been practicing law in this city for nearly thirty years. He served on the Magistrates bench from 1895 to 1902, being appointed by Mayor Strong.

Mr. Brann, when seen at his office, No. 302 Broadway, this afternoon, said that he had no statement to make about Lynch's affidavit. "I guess my reputation will stand against that of a self-confessed perjurer," he said.

PARKS DESERTED EVEN BY BIG BILL DEVER.

Alone in his cell in the Tombs, forsaken by his former friends and unable to get bail, Sam Parks, the labor leader, already convicted on a charge of extortion and later indicted on a charge of perjury, looks gloomily forward to his trial.

When Parks was arraigned before Judge Warren A. Foster on a charge of perjury, the indictment having been found principally on Farley's confession, Parks was informed that he would have to secure $10,000 bail before he could be released.

"I'm down and out. There ain't a chance on earth for me. I'll stay in the Tombs till they send me away," says Parks. The hardest blow Parks has yet received was the desertion of "Big Bill" Devery.

"I've done me dirt and trow me down," says Devery in speaking of Parks. "I ain't got no use for a man that carries water on both shoulders. I want a man to be as straight in his friendship to me as I am to him. I've done Parks favors and he ain't never done nothing for me, and he's been running with Charley Murphy and that gang. Let them take care of him."

When Parks first got into trouble alone in his cell in the Tombs, forsaken by his former friends and unable to get bail, Sam Parks, the labor leader, already convicted on a charge of extortion and later indicted on a charge of perjury, looks gloomily forward to his trial.

WIFE'S EFFORT TO SAVE FRUITLESS THAT SHE ISN'T ILL

Mrs. Maisel Struck Carbolic from Husband's Hands, but He Had Swallowed Enough of the Poison to Kill Him.

Despondent because of business reverses and the loss of the savings of seven years, Ignatz Maisel drank carbolic acid in the kitchen of his home, at No. 135 Rivington street. His wife tried in vain to snatch the bottle from his hands. He died before an ambulance surgeon came.

Maisel came to America seven years ago, leaving his sweetheart behind. He saved his earnings as a cigar-maker and she saved hers until a little more than a year ago she came here to join him. They were married as soon as she left the boat.

Their life was happy and they looked about for a place to invest their savings, which amounted to about $1,000. A few months ago they bought a cigar and candy store at No. 135 Rivington street. The business did not prosper and the small bank account began to disappear rapidly.

Maisel had been despondent for days and several times threatened to end his life. His wife watched him closely. Early to-day he got out of bed and went into the kitchen. Suspecting that all was not right, his young wife followed and found him drinking the poison.

She leaped toward him and struck the bottle from his hand. The acid fell in every direction, burning her hands and his face, but he had swallowed enough to kill him. Her screams attracted others in the tenement, and Dr. Milliken soon came with an ambulance from Governor Hospital, but he was too late.

$12,000 FOR HUSBAND'S LIFE. ROCHESTER, N. Y., Oct. 23.—Mrs. Elizabeth Fox, who sued the town of Manchester for damages for the death of her husband, got a verdict of $12,000 in the Canandaigua Supreme Court to-day. The husband had brushed against a broken electric light wire one way home one night and was instantly killed.

"L" STRIKE WAITS ON CONFERENCES

T. S. Ingraham, First Vice Grand Chief of the Engineers. Is to Meet Officials of the Road.

First Vice-Grand Chief T. S. Ingraham, of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, arrived in New York to-day and this afternoon was in conference at the Broadway Central Hotel with the committee of the local branch of the order, which has voted to resist the demands of the Manhattan Elevated Railway Company that the motormen of "L" trains shall undergo a physical examination once a year.

Ingraham carried with him a special message from Grand Chief Warren Stone, cautioning the men to be exceptionally cautious, that they should not order a strike until they were certain that their position was just and that the differences with the company could not be amicably settled. Grand Chief Stone was unable to come to New York himself, and he deputized Ingraham to take his place.

Chief Engineer Schenck, of the local union, before going into conference with Ingraham, said: "A much better feeling prevails among the men to-day, and we are now hopeful of averting a strike. I have talked with a number of the men to-day, and they believe that Ingraham will be able to put the matter before the company in such a light that it will yield."

"But I would not have it understood that the men are one bit less determined to resist the examinations than they were when they voted. No matter what the result of Ingraham's efforts may be, the members of the Brotherhood will not submit to physical examinations at the will of the company. We are very firm on that point, and there will be no change."

Despite the fact that the officials of the Interborough Rapid Transit Company express the belief there will be no strike, the company has been rapidly as possible. An office has been opened at No. 3 Bay street for this purpose, but the company in charge are very careful to tell all applicants that they are not to be given work as motormen, but will be accepted as gatekeepers and advanced as rapidly as possible.

It is expected that a conference will be arranged between Ingraham and the officials of the company to-morrow. Until this is over there is little likelihood of a strike being ordered.

COMMITTS BIGAMY TO GET EDUCATION

Young Dentist Pleads Guilty to Charge, but Claims His First Wife Released Him on Payment of $250.

After pleading guilty to a charge of bigamy, Dr. Benjamin Gluckstein, twenty-one years old, of Manchester, N. H., told Judge Foster in Part I, General Sessions, to-day that he had committed the crime in order to get an education.

In explaining his novel excuse, the young man said that when he was only seventeen years old he entered into an arrangement with a Mrs. Blasenstien whereby in return for $250, with which he was to get a course in dentistry, he would marry her daughter Gussie, sixteen years old.

The young persons were married, but separated on the day of their wedding through a quarrel, and ever since have lived apart. A few months ago Gluckstein married Bertha Klein, of No. 71 East One Hundred and Eighteenth street, and the young woman's mother said Mrs. Blasenstien the $250 she had given Dr. Gluckstein. Papers proving that the money had been returned were given as evidence.

The young man therefore claims that, while legally guilty of bigamy, he is not morally guilty of any wrong, his first wife having agreed to release him upon the payment of the money to her mother.

Judge Foster will render his decision in the case next Monday.

FAITH CURIST PAYS HIS FINE OF $500

J. Luther Pierson Is Afraid of Being Arrested for Contempt of Court—He Is Now a Holy Ghoster.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Oct. 23.—J. Luther Pierson, the faith curist, who was fined $500 for allowing his son to die from pneumonia while he prayed for his health, and which fine was affirmed by the Court of Appeals, declaring faith curing to be criminal, paid his fine this afternoon to District Attorney Young. The money was turned over to Mr. Young by Robert M. Farley, counsel for Pierson. The reason why the fine was paid was because Pierson feared he would be arrested on a bench warrant, which was issued by Judge Platt.

Mr. Young turned over the money given by the faith curist to the county treasurer. Mr. Pierson at the time of his trial was a member of Dowie's faith curing sect, and he was arrested after his conviction, as he did not believe that Dowie was a second Elijah.

KAISER SINKS IN A BOG.

BERLIN, Oct. 23.—Emperor William sank to his hips in a bog during his recent deer stalking at Rominten. The foresters in attendance pulled him out of the mire and he continued the hunt until evening without changing his clothes.

Later the Emperor gave orders that sixty pioneers be sent to Rominten, from Koenigsberg, to drain the morass and fill it with earth.

PENSION BUDGET CUT.

Decrease of $1,700,000 in the Estimate for Next Year. WASHINGTON, Oct. 23.—The Secretary of the Interior has completed and forwarded to the Secretary of the Treasury his estimate of the appropriations necessary to conduct the affairs of the Interior Department for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1905. The estimate places the total requirement for the Department at $158,000,000, which is about $2,000,000 less than the appropriation for the current year. The proposed reduction will be made in the Pension Bureau and the Indian office.

The estimate for pensions is $138,000,000, or $1,700,000 less than the appropriation made for this year. There also is a cut of $1,300,000 in the estimate for the Indian Bureau.
